- (a) Measure 3
- (b) Measure 4
- (c) Measure 6
- (d) Measure 7
- (ii) Measure 8
- (e) Measure 9
- (f) Measure 10
- (g) Measure 11
- (iii) Measure 12
- (iv) Measure 13

Cadence: Interrupted cadence (X)

- 3.1.1 Figure the chords at (a) to (g) on the score using Roman numerals, e.g. $\text{iii}^6/\text{iii}^b$.

Answer: See score

1 mark per chord = 7 marks Minus ½ mark if inversion or 7th is missing or incorrect

(7)

- 3.1.2 Figure the chords at (X) and name the cadence on the score.

Answer: See score

Chords = 2 marks Cadence = 1 mark

(3)

- 3.1.3 Comment on the D^\sharp in the bass clef in bar 11.

Answer:

- It creates a (harmonic) sequence of bar 9.
- It is a chromatic passing note between the D in bar 10² and E in bar 12¹.
- It creates a secondary dominant in first inversion.
- It is the leading note of E minor in the two-bar sequence (bars 11-12) on bars 9-10.
- It creates a major chord on the submediant (VI).

3.2 Study the extract below and answer the questions.

Answer:

The musical score extract is in D major (two sharps) and 2/4 time. It consists of three systems of two staves each. The first system contains measures 1-4, the second system contains measures 5-8, and the third system contains measures 9-12. Various chords and melodic fragments are highlighted with dashed boxes and labeled with letters (a) through (n) and Roman numerals (i) through (iv).

Labels and corresponding musical elements:

- (a) $F\sharp m$ (Measure 2, Treble staff)
- (b) Em^7 (Measure 4, Treble staff)
- (i) (Measure 1, Bass staff)
- (c) B^7 (Measure 5, Treble staff)
- (d) $C\sharp^7/E\sharp$ (Measure 6, Treble staff)
- (e) $Gmaj^9$ OR $G\Delta^9$ (Measure 7, Treble staff)
- (iii) (Measure 8, Treble staff)
- (f) Bm^7 (Measure 9, Treble staff)
- (iv) (Measure 10, Treble staff)
- (g) $G\sharp^{\circ 7}$ and $G\sharp dim^7$ (Measure 11, Treble staff)
- (m) A^7 (Measure 12, Treble staff)
- (n) D (Measure 12, Treble staff)

Cadence: ☐ Perfect cadence
(X)

- 3.2.1 Identify the chords at (a) to (g). Write the chord symbols in the spaces provided above the staves, e.g. G/B.

Answer: See score

1 mark per chord = 7 marks Minus ½ mark if chord inversion or extension is missing or incorrect

(7)

- 3.2.2 Write the chord symbols at (m) and (n) and name the cadence at (X) on the score.

Answer: See score

Chords = 2 marks Cadence = 1 mark Minus ½ mark if 7th is missing

(3)

- 3.2.3 Comment on the B^b in the bass clef in bar 11.

Answer:

- It is the root note of B^{b7} resolving to A⁷.
- It is the lowered submediant in D major.
- It creates a chromatic harmonic progression using seventh chords.

QUESTION 7

Describe how maskanda music became a popular genre.

Answer:

- The rich Zulu heritage and its significance to the Zulu people made maskanda largely popular in KwaZulu-Natal.
- Maskanda spread to various parts of the country when people moved from the rural areas to the big cities to seek a better quality of life.
- Maskanda was a popular form of street music in Durban drawing huge crowds.
- Maskanda was popularised by John Bhengu, who was known for his street performances in the late 1940s.
- In the 1970s, the acoustic guitar was replaced by electric guitars, creating the sound of modern maskanda.
- Traditional maskanda, combined with the heavy bass lines of mbaqanga, produced the popular sound that we know.
- Popularity was also due to the competitive maskanda festivals held at hostels and stadiums around the country, especially in KwaZulu-Natal and Johannesburg.
- Radio broadcasts further popularised this genre to wider audiences.

Explain how music is used in indigenous African initiation rituals. Refer to the following stages of initiation:

- Preparation of initiates (1)
- Circumcision (2 x 1)
- Return of initiates (2 x 1)

Answer:Preparation of initiates

- A ceremony is held to call the ancestors to guard the initiates during the process of initiation.
 - Praise singing is used to call the presence of the ancestors using their clan names when initiates depart to the initiation sites.
- In some cultures, the initiates go around the community singing songs to alert the community that they will be leaving for the initiation school.

1 mark

Initiation sites

- Initiation songs vary according to different cultures, e.g. domba (vhaVenda) and umtshilo (amaXhosa).
 - Songs are used to summon the ancestors before the initiates go through the process of initiation at the mountain.
 - Other songs are taught during initiation to teach the initiates different human qualities and cultural values through the use of the lyrics.
- Musical instruments are often used during initiation to embody spirits and to simulate animals.
- In some cultures the initiates create small models of animals, and compose songs about these models, e.g. a python in the vhaVenda culture is a symbol of female fertility, therefore performing the python dance during domba shows fertility of the initiates and readiness to start families.
- During the initiation process they sing songs like mokorotlo (Basotho) or somagwaza (amaXhosa) to reinforce their masculinity and reduce the pain.

Return of initiates

- On the return initiates wash in the river (where ancestors are believed to dwell) accompanied by song and dance, e.g. izidlalo (Amampondo).
- A ceremony is held at the initiates' home to acknowledge the ancestors for the safe return of the initiates.
 - In some Xhosa cultures men sing somagwaza and children sing celebratory songs during the return of the initiates.
- In some cultures the initiates will have to sing or dance to show that they have returned after the ritual has ended.
- Types of songs, e.g. mangae (baPedi), are sung and danced at the conclusion of this ritual.

QUESTION 10

Study the sketch below.

[Source: Examiners' own sketch]

This sketch above depicts an indigenous communal activity.

Write an essay in which you discuss how isicathamiya developed into a modern style and how its composing methods link to the communal activity shown in the sketch above.

You will be credited for the logical presentation of facts and the structure of the essay.

Answer:Example of an introduction

Traditionally, isicathamiya has been influenced by the Zulu cultural belief in the sense of community. Building a hut is a communal activity from its point of origin to its culmination. It is a creative process and not dissimilar to, e.g., composing a piece of music or developing a music style.

Development of the style

- Isicathamiya has its roots in communal traditions in the Zulu culture which believes in the doctrine 'Umntu ngumntu ngabantu'.
- Urbanization brought about migration to the cities to find work.
- In order to ease the loneliness, men living in hostels would entertain themselves by singing traditional songs from home and church hymns.
- Cultures were mixed in the hostels and different cultural groups influenced each other's music making.

- Imbube choral music and competitions developed from this integrated music.
- Hostels were congested and compactly constructed, the loud mbube night competitions became a challenge resulting in groups singing softer and dancing on tip toe (ukucothoza) instead of stamping.
 - A new version of imbube developed and was named isicathamiya based on ukucothoza.
- One of the groups that stood out in these competitions was 'Ezimnyama' (the black ones) which was later named Ladysmith Black Mambazo, founded by Joseph Shabalala in 1960.
- There were international collaborations, recordings and tours with well-known artists, e.g. Paul Simon on his Graceland album and tour, and Michael Jackson.
- By collaborating with other artists they incorporated music instruments into a traditionally a cappella style.
- Ladysmith Black Mambazo performed with other well-known South African groups, e.g. Soweto String Quartet.
- They included English in the lyrics to make the style more accessible.
- More modernised isicathamiya groups grew from modern isicathamiya already established by Ladysmith Black Mambazo, e.g. Thee Legacy.

7 x 1

Composing methods

- In isicathamiya composing songs is seen as 'ukwakha' (building a house) which is done as a communal project instead of an individual endeavour.
- The song composition is a shared task in the same way that duty is shared when building a hut.
- The master builder leads the building process while the rest of the group work on the different parts of the hut. In the same way, while 'building' a composition:
 - The composer (usually the leader) only teaches his indlela (path/part) of the composition.
 - The leader as the ivulindlela (pathfinder) leaves his izigqi (footprints) on the path, which is his style of composition.
 - The rest of the group follow with their own personal footprints using the interlocking rhythms and harmonic direction provided by the leader.
- Harmonisation is a collaborative procedure that is decided upon during this process.
- During the collaboration the ivulindlela (leader) stands in the middle surrounded by group members.
- Collaboration is also evident when the key of their composition is decided by the group members.

6 x 1

Example of a conclusion

The development of isicathamiya has been influenced by the belief in community, or Umntu ngumntu ngabantu, 'a person is a person because of other people'.

In amaZulu culture, the sense of community is a value that speaks to the identity of their nation. This explains their communal method of composing a song. Ladysmith Black Mambazo made this unique genre accessible to a wider audience.

11.5 Explain the 12-bar blues progression.

Answer:

- The 12-bar blues progression is a repeated/cyclic harmonic progression
- There are three 4-bar phrases structured as follows:
 - Bars 1 to 4: I – I – I – I (jazz blues uses I – IV – I – I or I – ii – I – V),
 - Bars 5 to 8: IV – IV – I – I,
 - Bars 9 to 12: V – IV – I – I/V (turnaround repeat)

QUESTION 12

Explain why the contribution of the Jazz Epistles is important to South African jazz.

Answer:

- The Jazz Epistles were South Africa's first well-known bebop band in the 1950s.
- Their influence, through combining hard bop with the developing African jazz culture, is their legacy.
- In 1959 their album Jazz Epistle, Verse 1 became the first album released by a black South African band.
- All members of the Jazz Epistles composed their own original material, thus creating a large body of work.
- The band consisted of Dollar Brand (later Abdullah Ibrahim) on piano, Kippie Moeketsi on alto saxophone, Jonas Gwangwa on trombone, Hugh Masekela on trumpet, Johnny Gertze on bass, Early Mabuza or Makaya Ntshoko on drums (who all became South African jazz-icons in their own right).
- The Jazz Epistles started a particular South African sound, which individual artists developed over the following decades.
- These compositions affirmed the culture and tradition of their African heritage.
- Many of these musicians chose exile and developed their style further through contact with European musicians. The group members were, inter alia, involved in the popular South African jazz musical, King Kong, which toured overseas.
- They ploughed back their newfound knowledge and skills into the South African context on their return.

QUESTION 13

Describe the role of the bass guitar in Ujomela. Refer to the rhythmic and harmonic support and the interaction with other instruments.

Answer:Rhythm

- The bass guitar provides a rhythmic foundation, locking in with the drums to create a solid groove.
- It helps establish the tempo and drive of the song.

Harmonic support

- The bass guitar reinforces/supports the harmonic structure (I – IV – V) by outlining the chord progressions, often playing the root notes of the chords and adding depth to the overall sound.

Interaction with other instruments

- The bass guitar interacts closely with the drums, creating a solid rhythm section.
- The bass guitarist also works together with the guitar, providing a bridge between harmonic and rhythmic elements and ensuring that all instruments blend seamlessly.
- It also responds to the call by the lead guitar.
- The bass guitar is important in establishing the 'feel' of the song and it influences the overall vibe and energy of the performance of this song.

QUESTION 15

Miriam Makeba was a singer and civil rights activist from South Africa who popularised African music around the world.

Write an essay in which you describe how Miriam Makeba became a world-renowned artist. Include her national and international successes and her political activism in your discussion.

You will be credited for the logical presentation of facts and the structure of the essay.

Answer:Example of an introduction:

Zenzile Miriam 'Mama Africa' Makeba was born in 1932 in Johannesburg and sang from an early age, starting her singing career as a member of the choir of the Kilnerton Institute in Pretoria.

National successes

- She started her professional singing career in the 1950s with the Manhattan Brothers.
- She then formed her own all-woman group called The Skylarks, which sang a blend of jazz, marabi and traditional songs.
- In 1956 she released the well-known song Pata Pata.
- Her big break came when she starred in the anti-apartheid documentary Come Back, and this helped her win the female singing lead role in King Kong in 1959.
- In 1993 she released Sing Me a Song.

4 x 1

International successes

- In 1959 she signed with RCA Victor and released her album Miriam Makeba.
- In 1962 Makeba and Belafonte sang at the birthday party of JF Kennedy.
- In 1963 she released her second album, The World of Miriam Makeba.
- She received a Grammy Award for Best Folk Song Recording with Belafonte in 1966 with the album, An Evening with Belafonte/Makeba.
- As her fame and reputation grew, she released Qongqothwane (The Click Song) and Malaika.
- In 1967 Pata Pata was recorded and released as a single in the USA and became an international hit.
- She continued to perform in Africa, Europe and Asia.
- She was one of the main entertainers in 1974 at the match between Muhammed Ali and George Foreman in Zaire (Democratic Republic of Congo).
- She returned to world prominence when she performed with Paul Simon on his Graceland album tour.
- Warner Bros. Records signed her and she released Sangoma as a tribute to her mother.
- Her autobiography was published and also translated into Spanish, German, Dutch, French, Italian and Japanese.
- In 1991 Makeba recorded Eyes on Tomorrow, together with Dizzy Gillespie, Nina Simone and Hugh Masekela; a combination of jazz, R&B, pop and African music.
- Makeba and Hugh Masekela toured the world to promote the album.

- During 1991 she appeared on an episode of The Cosby Show.
- In 2000 her song Homeland was nominated for a Grammy Award; it was called a love letter to Africa.
- In 2004 Makeba was voted 38th in the Top 100 billboard charts for her song Pata Pata.

5 x 1

Political activism

- In 1959 she exiled herself by taking refuge in London when the musical King Kong concluded in England.
- During the latter part of 1963, Miriam testified against apartheid in South Africa before the UN and her music was banned in South Africa and her South African citizenship and her right to return to South Africa were revoked.
- In 1966 she released an album titled An Evening with Belafonte/Makeba which dealt with the political plight of black South Africans under apartheid.
- Her marriage in 1968 to Stokely Carmichael (civil rights activist) caused racial controversy.
- Her recording contracts and tours were cancelled and she had to flee to Guinea as a result of the controversy surrounding her marriage, where she stayed for the next 15 years.
- In 1988 she participated in the Nelson Mandela 70th Birthday Tribute at Wembley Stadium. This performance helped pressurise the South African government to release Mandela.
- She was persuaded by Nelson Mandela after his release to return to South Africa, which she did in June 1990.
- In 1992 she played the role of Angelina - the main character's mother in Sarafina!
- In 2001 she was awarded the Otto Hahn Peace Medal in Gold, for outstanding services to peace and international understanding, for her decades of opposition to racism and apartheid in South Africa.
- She participated in the documentary Amandla - A Revolution in Four-Part Harmony.

QUESTION 19

Write a paragraph in which you describe the differences between a typical Classical symphony and Beethoven's Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68.

Answer:

- A typical Classical symphony has four movements, whereas the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68 has five movements.
- In a typical Classical symphony all movements are separate, while the last three movements of the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68 are connected.
- A typical Classical symphony utilises a standard Classical orchestra, while Beethoven added two trombones and a piccolo in the fourth movement of the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68.
- Modulation is to related keys in a typical Classical symphony, while modulation to related and distant keys is employed in the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68.
- The movements of a typical Classical symphony have no titles, whereas the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68 contains titles for each movement.
- A typical Classical symphony is an example of absolute music, while the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68 has programmatic elements, especially in the fourth movement (Thunderstorm).
- Form types:
 - Classical symphony:
I (Sonata), II (Ternary), III (Minuet and trio), IV (Sonata/Sonata-rondo/Rondo)
 - Beethoven Symphony No. 6:
I (Sonata), II (Sonata), III (Scherzo and trio), IV (Episodical), V (Sonata-rondo)
- A typical Classical symphony has a limited tonal range while the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68 has an extended tonal range.
- The coda was seldom extensively developed in the typical Classical symphony, while the Symphony No. 6 in F major Op. 68 has an expanded coda.

QUESTION 20

Many of Mozart's operas were written in the genre of opera seria, yet today he is mostly treasured for his opera buffa and the Singspiel.

In an essay, briefly describe these THREE opera types and indicate how the elements of each opera type find expression in Mozart's The Magic Flute.

You will be credited for the logical presentation of facts and the structure of the essay.

Answer:Example of an introduction

Mozart was a prolific composer who wrote operas in the style of opera seria, opera buffa and Singspiel. His last completed stage work, The Magic Flute, was a Singspiel which combined elements of both opera seria and opera buffa.

Opera seria

- It is a serious opera.
- There was no spoken dialogue.
- The libretto was in Italian.
- This type of opera was concerned almost entirely with aristocratic characters and often based on mythological Greek and Roman tragedies and heroic stories.
- The traditional model for opera seria had three acts.
- It uses high voices (both sopranos and castrati) for principal characters, often even for the portrayal of monarchs.
- The da Capo aria was a showcase for the virtuoso soloists.
- The use of an aria vendetta is typical of opera seria.
- Each act followed a strict format of recitativo secco and arias, ending with a chorus.

2 x 1

Opera buffa

- It is a comic opera.
- There is spoken dialogue.
- The libretto was in Italian.
- Opera buffa involves the use of comic scenes, everyday characters and plot lines in a common-day setting.
- Opera buffa usually has two acts.
- Comic characters were assigned to lower male voices.
- Comic operas were first characterised by ordinary settings, local dialects and simple vocal writing.
- Opera buffa was made for and depicted common people.
- Sophisticated language was avoided in favour of local idiomatic dialogue that the working class would relate to.

2 x 1

Singspiel

- Comic elements, romance, magic and the supernatural are part of the plot.
- A Singspiel is a German opera.
- It contains spoken dialogue.
- A Singspiel usually has two acts.
- The Singspiel was considered middle-to-lower class entertainment, as opposed to the predominantly aristocratic genres of opera seria.

2 x 1

The Magic FluteOpera seria

- Virtuoso elements in arias, such as Der Hölle Rache kocht in meinem Herzen sung by the Queen of the Night.
- The serious characters, e.g. the prince and the priest, is typical of opera seria characterisations.
 - The choice of bass voice type in Sarastro's O Isis und Osiris depicts his character as wise and moral.
 - The prince sings the lyrical aria Dies Bildnis ist bezaubernd schön, which shows the element of heroism, portrayed by the choice of a high voice/lyrical tenor.
 - The tension between good and evil is outlined by the choice of a very high range (Queen of the Night) and a very low vocal range (Sarastro).

Opera buffa

- Characteristics of opera buffa are clearly evident by his innovative use of music for portraying common characters, such as the folk-like aria Der Vogelfänger bin ich ja.
- The characterisation of an every-day character, such as the bird catcher and his partner, is typical of opera buffa.
- Comedy and comic relief form part of the plot as depicted by Papageno.
- The use of folk-like melodies, such as Der Vogelfänger bin ich ja (Papageno) displays the influence of opera buffa as entertainment for the working class.
- Spoken dialogue is used in combination with arias, duets and choruses.
- The Magic Flute is in two acts and matches the model of opera buffa.

Singspiel

- The libretto is in German.
- The storyline includes magical elements, as demonstrated in the magic flute and magic bells given to Tamino and Papageno to assist them in difficulty.
- Spoken dialogue is used in combination with arias, duets and choruses.

7 x 1

Example of a conclusion

Mozart perfected the balance between opera seria and opera buffa in his final Singspiel, The Magic Flute. He combined elements of comedy, drama, romance and depth in musical characterisation with graceful and lyrical melodies and clarity of orchestration.
